Special Edition

Volume 6, Issue 1

Letter from the Editor

Greetings to the archery community!

I have been laboring over what I wanted to say in this especially odd time for all of us in our beloved Society, our archery community at large, and our mundane lives. With the current situation in the world, the COVID-19 pandemic, we find ourselves much at a loss for what to do with our time. Many of us have been displaced, either working from home, or out of work completely, and have found all of our favorite events cancelled for our own safety and well being.

I have been facing all of these situations myself, and have allowed it to interrupt my duties as managing editor of Quivers & Quarrels, and my promise to all of you to see to it that our newsletter is put out in a timely manner. I would like to take a moment and apologize for this. I understand no apology is necessary, as in these troubling times many of us have found ourselves a little overwhelmed with real life, as happens from time to time, and that all of you understand this. But being responsible for this newsletter, and knowing your expectations are that it will be there regardless of whatever else the world may bring our way, I do offer my sincerest apologies.

Know that I have not abandoned the newsletter and am working on the special memorial edition I have been collecting articles for. I plan on resuming our normal quarterly issues in June.

In the meantime I would ask if anyone who has not contacted me with memorial articles for those whom we have lost from our archery community, and would like to contribute to the upcoming special edition, contact me as soon as possible so I can add the articles to the current line-up. I plan on having this issue out no later than late May to mid-June, then I will begin work on the regular June Issue.

I will need your help with content for the June issue in order to put out the same quality newsletter you are accustomed to. Please send all submissions to qqchronichler@gmail.com no later than May 29th for inclusion in the June issue. I am looking for articles in DIY, "how to", historical, teaching, anything SCA archery related. Lets move forward with a positive outlook on how we can make our community even better than it was before this health crisis we have found ourselves in. Thank you all for your patience during this most trying time, I hope to see you all out on the ranges soon.

Yours In Service

Lady Máirin Ó Nialláin
